Image: TV News Image : CBS The rumor mill turns when it comes to Star Trek: Discovery. For one, there are a lot of rumors to be churning over during the show's production, but now there is some firm intel about what series regulars Michael Chabon and Wilson Cruz will be playing. We learned that they'll be joined by Showrunners Alex Kurtzman and Michelle Paradise as series regulars for the second season, and now a rumor popped up in TV Line about the show's third season. According to the rumor, which has been confirmed by Variety, Kyle MacLachlan will appear in the third season of the Star Trek: Discovery. The claim stems from the fact that MacLachlan was seen in a photo taken by a fan where his name was written on a piece of paper. The photo was shot right in front of the sign for Star Trek: Discovery in New York City. Michael Chabon and Wilson Cruz both starred in Star Trek: Discovery's second season. One of them was sent into space for the first time, and the other was led through another galaxy of dangerous experiences to pursue his new team's agenda. They were joined by other high-profile Star Trek actors as supporting characters, including Terry Farrell, Jason Isaacs, and Jason Isaacs. Reuniting with MacLachlan, as a series regular, could mean an interesting story for Discovery. His character will be important to the next few seasons of the series. It seems likely that this won't be his only appearance as the story goes along. Production on Star Trek: Discovery's third season is expected to begin in the fall. The cast, production team, and executive producers for the series recently gathered in Puerto Rico for its "Year of Discovery" festivities. While Discovery will be the next big addition to the Star Trek legacy, the current timeline is set to change when The Original Series returns for its 25th anniversary in September 2017. The overall objective of the proposed research is to investigate the immunological basis of the renal allograft rejection. While laboratory
